Ministers Accept Roles In 'Underground' Film

By HEDDA HOPPER

HOLLYWOOD—Twelve ministers will play themselves in Eagle-Lion's "Twelve Against the Underworld," which is based on a story by Dr. Norman Nygaard, a World War I veteran and civilian chaplain in the last war. When he returned to his home in Steubenville, O., in 1945, Nygaard found it over-ridden with the underworld, so he and 11 other ministers organized to rid the town of gangsters and grafting politicians. Aubrey Schenck will produce and Director Anthony Mann and Cameraman John Alton, who worked together on "T-Man" will be retained. The picture will be made entirely on location. It might set an example for other towns throughout America.
